OTHER HELPFUL INFO

[1] Please fill out form legibly and completely to reduce chances of error.

[2] We will gladly ship to Canada. However, shipping to Canada is at customer's own risk and will incur international priority shipping charges. We will not be responsible in rare cases of customs delay and potential spoilage. Canadian customers, please note in the comments section of your form to acknowledge risk. It is also our recommendation to smoke any salmon if shipping to Canada.

[3] Due to the mass volume of fish shipped, we are prohibited from using dry ice. It can be normal for some thawing to occur during the shipping process. You can refreeze the fish, without any quality loss to the product, if fish arrives "cool to the touch."

[4] The "ship on" date on your paperwork is the requested date your fish will leave our facility. Sometimes this is not possible due to FedEx freight limits. If we are unable to ship on a particular day, a staff member will call to arrange an alternate ship date.

[5] We often get questions regarding the retention of the fish after processing. Industry standards are approximately:

Salmon - 50%
Halibut - 40%
Rockfish & Cod - 20%

[6] We encourage you to read the back of the pink copy of your invoice for answers to further questions you may have regarding the processing and shipping of your fish.
